

2009 Billi Billi Pinot Grigio

Reviews

There are plenty of Aussie pinot grigio's that are almost twice the price but don't deliver double the quality. Bill Billi - Mount Langi Ghiran's entry label - is well pitched on price and style with its spicy pear-note character. Phenolic grip adds to the texture. Refreshing and very gluggable.

Sometimes a wine can be simple and light and still absolutely delicious to drink - a quaffing wine, one that doesn't require too much thought or comment. The Langi pinot grigio is this sort of wine. Weighing in at a beautifully light 11 per cent alcohol and possessing soft, pear and apple fruit flavours, it really is far too easy to find the end of the bottle.

Esteemed Victorian winery Mount Langi Ghiran pioneered pinot grigio in Australia and has been making the style for almost 20 years - well before it became insanely fashionable. This has just 11% alcohol and is young and vibrant with pear and tropical fruit salad flavours and great finishing acid. This is a wine that has real drinkability - and it's a delicious alternative to Kiwi sauvignon blanc.

With a crisp, refreshing citrus zest structure and a palate depth built around peach, pear and wild honey flavours, this is a great value Pinot Grigio which is ready to perform.

From the famous stable of Mount Langi Ghiran comes an easy-drinking, character-filled wine in true grigio style. Spiced pear and apple blossom perfume, crisp and clean in the mouth with classic pear and honeydew melon flavours, lots of fresh tropical fruit and chalky mineral texture. Match with Shellfish paella or creamy chicken dishes.
